

The demonstration project of broadband over powerlines has conclusively proved the unacceptable inteferance with the high frequency radio bands. This unshielded transmission of varying frequencies throughout the spectrum will disrupt communications in a direct manner. Further demonstrations must be delayed until a technology has been developed to eliminate this disruption.